NOTE: This is a sample table. You will need to make your own in your record book with enough rows for each learner in your class. (K= knowledge, S = skills, V = values)

Some items that may be assessed are given for each lesson:

LESSON 1

- Knowledge: How we differ from animals
- Skill: Expressing positive thoughts about themselves
- Values: Seeing themselves positively

LESSON 2

- Knowledge: God loves unconditionally
- Skill: Affirming self and others
- Values: Acknowledging the value of difference

LESSON 3

- Knowledge:
- Skill: Composing own prayers
- Values:

LESSON 4

- Knowledge: Jesus, the Light of the World
- Skill: Leading another blindfold
- Values:

Key:
 ✓✓GOOD ✓AVERAGE ✕WEAK

You, the teacher will decide how to use the above instrument. It will not be possible to assess each learner's knowledge, skills and values in each lesson. You might decide, for instance, to focus in a particular lesson on skills, in another lesson on the knowledge, and on the values in yet another. Another useful strategy is to divide your class into assessment groups of say ten learners as a time. Each time you do an assessment of the above kind you choose a single group on a rotation basis.
